When it comes to sit-stand desks there are the hydraulic tables that have flooded the US market over the past ten years and there are the best looking standing desks that are actually furniture and not just a table tops affixed on top of a set of hydraulic legs. Which will look best in your office. The choice is clear. Of course, fine furniture is going to cost more than bare hydraulic steel legs but which do you want for your executive office, something that looks like it belongs in a science lab or your office decor? And when you consider the improved productivity that comes from a sit-stand standing adjustable desk, how can you put a value on that? Most of us think better on our feet. But, that being the case doesn't necessarily mean we want to be standing all day long. With our sit-stand hydraulic adjustable desks, you can rotate from sitting to standing in half-hour intervals throughout the day for maximum efficiency.
