When it comes to standing desks these are among the best looking standing desks that are actually fine furniture and not just a table tops affixed on top of a set of hydraulic legs. Which will look best in your office. The choice is clear. Of course, fine furniture is going to cost more than bare hydraulic steel legs but which do you want for your executive office, something that looks like it belongs in a science lab or your office decor? And when you consider the improved productivity that comes from a sit-stand standing desk, how can you put a value on that? Most of us think better on our feet.
